

ABSTRACT

The present invention is related to an animal feed product for ruminant animals containing urea as a source of non-protein nitrogen and a method for forming the same. The animal feed product includes urea which has been crushed from a large 5 size prill or granule prior to pelleting with other animal feed components. The resulting composition has improved storage and processing properties.